Strip faith-based schools of government funding

Letter

Published: Saturday, September 01, 2007

We need to end government-funded religious schools, not increase them. (Funny how conservatives don't want the private sector to fund this.) Premier McGuinty is right to call them segregationist. The next generation needs to interact with people of different faiths or no faith, like me, especially now, with religious types using religion to attack each other, steal people's lands or oppress women.

You need to interact with and meet people who don't share your beliefs so that you can start empathizing with other human beings. If your religion is so weak that you need daily indoctrination to keep the sheep in line, then maybe you need to rethink your beliefs.
